Accountant-General Nor Yati Ahmad, in her speech, said from 2010 to 2024, a total of 115 of 434 government agencies, or 26%, had been awarded the Saga Compliance Certificate.

She said JANM would conduct compliance reviews at agencies that had obtained the compliance certificate to ensure that all criteria continue to be met, thereby ensuring the quality of the certification.

“The Saga Government Agencies Conference will be held biannually to provide exposure and share information on the latest technological developments in computerised financial and accounting systems that meet Saga compliance criteria.

“It also serves as a social networking platform between government agencies and JANM to exchange knowledge and discuss current developments or challenges relevant to accounting,” she said at the ceremony.
